Raiders Drop Opener

Brothers David and Arthur Read scored 11 points each and grabbed 21 rebounds between them to pace Jefferson Forest to a 55-38 season opening basketball victory over Appomattox County Tuesday night.

David Franklin led the Raiders scoring with 10 points while Mike Lewis chipped in nine and Hal Smith and Mitch Eggleston each scored eight.

The Raiders were hampered by poor shooting, hitting over 29 percent from the floor and 18 percent from the foul line, but it was the height advantage enjoyed by the Calvaliers that made the real difference in the ball game.

Cavaliers held a 46-19 rebound advantage with David Read garnering 12 and Arthur Read and Howard Hicks each grabbing nine. Enoch Robinson grabbed seven errant shots to lead the Raiders' rebounding.

Coach Cliff Morris used nine players in an effort to find a consistent combination, but only near the end of the second period did the Raiders show any real spark when they closed the deficit from 20-12 with 3:07 left in the half, to 22-19 at the buzzer.

The Raiders will entertain the Generals of William Campbell Friday night for the first home game of the season.

The Raiders will entertain the Generals of William Campbell Friday night for the first home game of the season.

In the preliminary game, Jefferson Forest ran up a big halftime lead over the Appomattox girls, and coasted to a 46-22 win.

Daniel Reports

By W. C. (Dan) Daniel
Virginia Fifth District Congressman

WASHINGTON-Last week's Newsletter concerned present circumstances as regards our foreign assistance efforts, and more particularly, the food shortage which is now upon the world. This is an extension of that subject, and is another example of why we are in such deep economic and fiscal trouble.

The first foreign assistance programs provided by this country were at the end of World War I, and consisted of surplus war materials for relief, of direct food and money contributions, and of loan totalling, from 1918 to 1940, more than $1.5 billion. Of the 11 nations receiving surplus war materials, 9 are now behind the Iron Curtain; of the 6 receiving food, 6 are under Communist control. One, Armenia, has disappeared, having been divided three ways by Russia, Iran and Turkey. If anyone ever thought you could "buy" friends with foreign aid, our experience in that period should put the idea to rest. Lend-lease, credits and loans, and other assistance of the World War II period totalled some $49 period totalled some $49 billion; $23.7 billion including loans and interest has now been repaid from World War I.

It was not until some 27 years ago, just after the end of the war, that foreign aid became a more or less orderly, planned - for undertaking, as opposed to spotty reaction to problems. In 1947, the Marshall Plan was initiated to rehabilitate the war-torn countries of Western Europe. The motivation was basically of the highest sort, and did prove a three-fold: to assist those nations devastated by 6 years of almost unremitting attack; to forestall the nations of Western Europe's falling under control of Russia; and to assist those once-stable and financially independent countries to return to their status as trading partners, for if there was one thing we had learned, it was that total political and economic isolationism did not work.

The American people were told that the Marshall Plan would cost $12 billion over a 4-year period, and this estimate was closer than usual for the federal government. Actual appropriations totalled $18.9 billion for the period. In the years 1945 through 1974, total appropriations for foreign assistance amounted to $173.9 billion.

Nor is that all. This country's direct contributions to the Export-Import Bank, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (known as the World Bank, and encompassing a number of specialized lending agencies), and the Asian Development Bank, have been vital to these sources of development funds for other countries. And it must be recognized in today's unsettled economic conditions that the potential obligation assumed by underwriting these loans could represent a further financial drain.

And there is more. P.L. 480, the "Food for Peace" program, has resulted in over $21 billion worth of agricultural products being shipped to nearly 100 countries all over the world in the 21 years of the program's existence.

But still the whole story is not told. For there has been no accounting, to my knowledge, of the billions of dollars in food, in medical supplies and health care, and in other forms of assistance which have been provided the world's less fortunate by American religious and charitable institutions.

Aid to foreign countries becomes, obviously, an area where the people of the United States need bow to no man.

The House Committee on Foreign Affairs has reported out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1974, authorizing $2.6 billion in aid, and an indication of the something less than wholehearted support this subject is receiving is revealed by the fact that the Report incorporates opposing, separate, supplemental, additional and minority views.

While the Constitution assigns to the Congress the power "to regulate commerce with foreign nations", lately the initiative in this area has gone to the President by default, with Congress providing the necessary legislative support and cooperation. Unfortunately, in seeking to re-establish its authority in this area, Congress has gone off in all directions, seeking to dictate internal policies for other nations by approving or withholding funds.

As Congressman Derwinski put it: "The Committee is deeply distressed by the absence of human rights in certain countries. Chile with its right-leaning junta was singled out for condemnation. But Peru with its left-leaning junta was omitted . . . I find it difficult to follow the committee's ability and willingness to pick and choose . . ." Congressman H. R. Gross, who regrettably will be leaving us this year, and who has consistently opposed giveaway programs, had this to say about the committee's "contributions to foreign policy. Its statemen read the daily headlines and make foreign policy off the seat of their pants. The committee issues stern warnings to some and withholds dollars to punish others . . ." Also commenting on Chile's treatment, Gross added: "If the committee only had more time, it might have discovered the absence of human rights in some of our other clients . . . Application of the human rights test on a worldwide basis would certainly save the taxpayers a lot of money."

Summing up, it seems to me that one proposition stands out. We have learned that we cannot be policeman to the world. Let us now concede we cannot be its rich uncle, either.

Report On Coal in Southwestern Va. Available

Coal in Virginia's most valuable commodity. It comprised approximately 70 percent of the total value of the state's mineral production in 1973, totalling $377,679,000.

A new publication, Bulletin 84, by the Virginia Division of Mineral Resources describes the coal beds and associated rocks in Buchanan, Dickenson, Russell, Scott, Tazewell, and Wise counties where most of the state's coal is located. The report, "Stratigraphy and Coal Beds of Upper Mississippian and Lower Pennsylvania Rocks in Southwestern Virginia," is authored by fuels geologist Marshall S. Miller.

Commissioner of Mineral Resources and State Geologist Dr. James L. Calver says of the report: "This is one of the most comprehensive subsurface studies undertaken by a governmental agency to encourage and assist coal exploration in Virginia."

The report consists of 211 pages and 66 illustrations, which include descriptions of 19 coal beds and maps showing thickness and extent of 10 of the most important beds. The author notes that "of the coal beds studied, the Pocahontas No. 3 and War Creek coals have the greatest economic potential."

Single copies of Bulletin 84 are available at $6.00 each plus 4 percent sales tax for Virginia addresses. Write to Virginia Division of Mineral Resources, Box 3667, Charlottesville, Va. 22903.
